**Saving Files** In this book, we cover the more commonly used tools and features of Photoshop CS6 and you will get the most out of Photoshop if you use many tools. When you use tools to manipulate images, you can save or export the changes you have made in one of the following file formats: **JPEG** You can save these as files on your computer or devices. The images will be saved as a JPEG image file. **TIFF/TIF** Saving in a TIFF file allows you to save a flattened image that can be printed at 300 dpi and not lose detail, unlike a JPEG, which reduces the amount of detail. It is a standard format for use on CD-ROMs, slideshows, and printed publications. Photoshop CS6 allows you to save your changes in both TIFF and JPEG image formats at the same time. **PSD** A Photoshop document (PSD) file is the most common file format used for editing digital images. Photoshop CS6 opens and saves files in the PSD format. A Photoshop file is a simple layer-based format, where each pixel can be edited. This allows any image to be edited at very high speeds without losing quality. This is especially true for digital photographers. To save an image in a file format, open the Save As dialog box by going to File Save As and then selecting where the files should be saved. Figure 6.1 shows you how to save the file. This will save it in the default location for you in the format you selected. **Figure 6.1** : Saving your image One thing to be aware of when saving files is that once you save a file, it is locked for editing. If you attempt to open and edit the file, you will be asked if you want to "Save Changes" or "Discard Changes." If you select "Save Changes," you will be given the chance to make changes later. * * *

President Barack Obama's reelection campaign raised a record-breaking $63 million in August, with the candidate himself raking in more than $11 million during a five-day stretch in which he made his first public campaign appearance of the campaign and a dozen fundraisers came and went in New York. Obama's highest-dollar donor, hedge fund billionaire George Soros, donated $20 million of his own money to the campaign during August, bringing his total contribution to the campaign to $20.3 million, Politico reported Tuesday. of a government center and an airport, a few buildings from the 1970s and a few crumbling buildings from the 1950s. The main plaza, just next to where the harbor is, is called Carrera 1 Norte and it is surrounded by the canteen, the Ciudadela Post Office, the old post office, the Diario de Punta Arenas buildings, Caleta Post Office and the old city hall. The town hall is next to the main plaza, but it is closed in the summer time because it has no air conditioning. Most of the little houses that make up the town are in the proximity of the main plaza, so they have been built in a smaller format. In the old port, there are also some residences and some little stores that sell some basics like food or clothing, like fiestas. In the center of Punta Arenas, the streets are not as many as in the downtown, but it is where the most popular restaurants and stores are. In one corner, there is a pizza parlor and in the other corner, there is a popcorn stand. Each night, the boats that bring tourists to the town and to the salt in La Herradura come back to Punta Arenas, so a small section of the beach next to the lighthouse gets crowded. The best beaches in Punta Arenas are Caleta Custodio and Caleta Forchu, both of them are close to the town and perfect for relaxing in the warmer months. Both have access to water that is in the shade, so you won't have to worry about getting sunburned. Since they are right next to the water, they can also get very crowded, especially in the summertime when all the tourists come to Punta Arenas. Entertainment and Nightlife in Punta Arenas During the summer, the only way to be entertained is in the town center, in the main plaza. Although the
